

Christopher Ecclestone of Molten Metals talks about why now is a good time to be in antimony

written by InvestorNews | September 8, 2022

In this InvestorIntel interview, host Tracy Weslosky talks to Molten Metals Corp.'s (CSE: MOLT) Executive Director & CEO Christopher Ecclestone about the newly-listed antimony and antimony-gold company.

In the interview, which can also be viewed in full on the InvestorIntel YouTube channel (click here to access InvestorChannel.com), Christopher tells Tracy that Molten is "totally dedicated to production. We're not interested in fooling around, we're not interested in spending enormous number of years and amounts of money on exploration – we just want to get to production because the prices are up and we want to harvest those prices."

Christopher also tells InvestorIntel that Molten Metals, with only 17 million shares issued, planned a fairly quiet entry into the market to preserve their first mover advantage in this niche but important critical mineral market. "At the moment we are the only non-Chinese listed miner dedicated to antimony," he says, which has many industrial and military applications. With prices again on the rise, Christopher says, "it's a pretty good moment to be in antimony."
