

Melissa Sanderson of American Rare Earths Provides an Update on its Projects in Arizona and Wyoming

written by InvestorNews | March 10, 2023

In this InvestorIntel interview, Jack Lifton talks to American Rare Earths Limited's (ASX: ARR | OTCQB: ARRF) President North America Melissa 'Mel' Sanderson about its portfolio of rare earths assets in the United States, including Arizona, Nevada, and Wyoming, and the fact that it is well funded with $15 million in the bank. Providing an update on their scandium-rich La Paz rare earths deposit in Arizona, Mel also discusses American Rare Earths' recent high-grade assay results from the Halleck Creek Rare Earths project in Wyoming.

Speaking about the exceptionally low uranium and thorium content at both of their projects, Mel goes on to discuss American Rare Earths' US Government funded R&D partnerships including with the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, Ames National Laboratory, Arizona State, and Penn State University. As the only rare earths junior explorer focused on biomining, Mel explains how American Rare Earths is helping in developing "cleaner, greener processing and separation technologies for rare Earths."

About American Rare Earths Limited

One of the only ASX-listed companies with exposure to the rapidly expanding US market, American Rare Earths is developing its 100% owned magnet metals projects, La Paz in Arizona, and Halleck Creek in Wyoming. Both have the potential to be among the largest, rare earths deposits in North America. The company is concurrently evaluating other exploration opportunities while collaborating with US Government supported R&D to develop a sustainable domestic supply chain for the renewable future.
