

Stephen Burega of Romios Gold Talks about the Trek Copper & Gold Claims in BC's Golden Triangle

written by InvestorNews | March 30, 2023

In this PDAC 2023 InvestorIntel interview, Stephen Lautens speaks with Stephen Burega, CEO, President, and Director of Romios Gold Resources Inc. (TSXV: RG | OTCQB: RMI0F) about its Trek claims along the southern boundary of British Columbia's Galore Creek, which is home to a massive copper deposit and proposed copper mine co-owned by Tech and Newmont.

Stephen talks about how the drill-defined Trek North porphyry copper & gold ("Cu-Au") zone and the newly discovered Trek South porphyry Cu-Au target could be attractive targets for a company looking to acquire or partner in a sizeable copper-gold project. He goes on to say that the road that services Galore Creek intersects Trek and Romios also has the advantage of being near the Golden Triangle infrastructure with the proposed Galore Creek mill site only being about 12 kilometres down the road.

He also discusses 2022 geophysical ("IP") work that indicates an unexplored drill target up to 800 metres long, between 250 and 500 metres wide and 600 metres deep, that underlies the centre of the porphyry system at Trek South. Stephen explains that Romios will drill it when they find the right partner to properly explore its potential.
