

Investor.Coffee (11.19.2024): Putin has Investors Eyeing Gold for Safety

written by Tracy Hughes | November 19, 2024

Good morning Investor.Coffee Readers!

Canadian and U.S. markets are poised for a cautious open today as geopolitical tensions escalate. Russian President Vladimir Putin's recent updates to nuclear doctrine have shifted investor sentiment toward safe-haven assets, including gold and the U.S. dollar. Canadian investors are also anticipating domestic Consumer Price Index (CPI) data for October, expected to provide clarity on the Bank of Canada's potential interest rate cuts next month.

Australian and UK Markets

The Australian Securities Exchange (ASX) opened with modest gains, reflecting optimism in the energy and mining sectors. The UK's FTSE futures indicate a higher opening, bolstered by improved earnings sentiment and consumer confidence ahead of upcoming inflation data releases.

Europe and Asia Markets

Asian indices exhibited mixed performance, with Japan's Nikkei climbing on robust gains in semiconductor stocks, while Chinese markets remained subdued amid ongoing regulatory uncertainties. European markets are set to open higher, following upward movements in DAX and Euro STOXX futures, signaling cautious optimism among investors.

Notable Company Highlights

Alphabet Inc. (NASDAQ: GOOGL)

Yesterday, reports emerged that the U.S. Department of Justice plans to request a judge to mandate the sale of Alphabet's Chrome browser as part of a broader antitrust remedy. Google criticized the proposal as detrimental to innovation and consumer interests, with a final ruling expected by mid-2025.

Amazon.com Inc. (NASDAQ: AMZN)

Yesterday, a U.S. appellate panel reviewed Amazon's challenge against the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB). Judges suggested the appeal may have been premature, complicating the legal path for Amazon's labor-related disputes.

Amcor Plc (NYSE: AMCR) & Berry Global Group Inc. (NYSE: BERY)

Today, Amcor announced an $8.43 billion all-stock deal to acquire Berry Global, creating a packaging powerhouse with a combined revenue of $24 billion. Berry shareholders will receive a 9.75% premium per share as part of the merger, which is expected to close by mid-2025.

Archer-Daniels-Midland Co. (NYSE: ADM)

Today, ADM reported a steep decline in third-quarter profits due to weak grain trading performance. After restating previous earnings, ADM affirmed its annual EPS guidance at $4.50–$5.00.

Bakkt Holdings (NYSE: BKKT) & Trump Media and Technology Group Corp.

Today, reports suggest that Trump Media is in advanced talks to acquire crypto trading firm Bakkt in an all-stock deal. The move aligns with the group's growing involvement in cryptocurrency ventures.

Johnson & Johnson (NYSE: JNJ)

Yesterday, J&J announced successful trial results for icotrokinra, its oral drug for plaque psoriasis. The company plans further trials in 2025 and is preparing milestone payments of $165 million to its partner Protagonist Therapeutics.
