March 22, 2022 (Source) – ePlay Digital Inc. \(CSE:EPY\)\(OTC:EPYFF\)\(FSE:2NY2\) (the “Company”) today announced at the Game Developer’s Conference in San Francisco, that it is dropping game characters for Howie Go Viral, Big Shot Basketball, and Klocked. Each character has a unique style, appearance, unlocks, skins, and special features. Naomi, the first game character released by ePlay comes with 3-months free Klocked race registration, Spartan gear, and special audio and video effects. The game characters released as NFT’s also come with unique animations and camera unlocks.

Advanced game characters come with built in unlocks, special features, and skins

Earlier this week, the award-winning Klocked fitness app announced support for full camera and gesture control in 3D map scenes. Pan, zoom, and camera switching is now possible with Klocked allowing users and spectators full control of the 3D world and avatars in Klocked World sports metaverse. Athletes can have a look around as they toe the start line or get ready in the starting corral. Spectators can manipulate cameras to find the best angles and isolate on key parts of the race or racers.

“We are creating ways to make it easier and easier to immerse into the sports metaverse,” says Trevor Doerksen, CEO of ePlay Digital and co-creator of Klocked fitness app. “Releasing game characters as NFT’s allow users to create profiles and move between games and apps seamlessly.”

Klocked announced the new features at the game industry’s premier professional event, GDC, in San Francisco. Klocked is part game engine part fitness tracker. Klocked participants can run solo, in groups, or races in 3D with augmented reality audio and video immersion. Each step in the real world goes towards coins, medals, gear, points, unlocks, loot boxes and more. Klocked lets runners improve their times with fun, game, and motivation.
