February 2, 2021 (Source) – Predictiv AI Inc. (TSXV: PAI) (OTC: INOTF) (FSE: 71TA) ("Predictiv AI" or the "Company"), www.predictiv.ai, a software and solutions provider in the artificial intelligence markets, is pleased to announce the sale of multiple ThermalPass temperature detection devices to the First Nations Innus of Ekuanitshit community. These sensor-based temperature screening units, will be used as part of the health and safety protocols developed by this First Nations community for its members and will be placed in their school, health centre, town hall, and grocery store. The sale was managed by KleinCity Group, exclusive reseller for ThermalPass in Quebec and Atlantic Canada, where the aboriginal communities represent a large emerging sales channel that is now being pursued.

"To assure the protection and health of the members of our community and our partners, is my highest concern," said Innus of Ekuanitshit Chief Jean-Charles Piétacho. "At this time with the pandemic, we view the ThermalPass as absolutely essential when planning to manage risk and help prevent the spread of the virus."

"Indigenous communities, particularly in remote areas, face unique circumstances and have distinct needs in managing through the pandemic. This dynamic and proud community is leading by example and implementing as many precautionary measures as possible, such as the ThermalPass, to help keep their families, friends, and neighbours safe," said Predictiv AI CEO, Michael

Lende. “We are fortunate to have a partner like KleinCity Group who not only services local city centres such as Montreal and Quebec City, but will also travel to rural parts of Quebec and throughout Atlantic Canada to introduce their clients to ThermalPass.”

The Company is not making any express or implied claims that its product has the ability to eliminate, cure, or contain the COVID-19 (or SARS-2 coronavirus) at this time.
