About Fox Tungsten Ltd.

The Fox Tungsten project is one of the highest-grade tungsten resources in the world, located in central British Columbia near roads and power lines. It is a premier, 100%-owned critical minerals deposit, uniquely positioned to solve the West's urgent tungsten supply deficit. The successful 2025 drill program extended mineralization at the RC & BN zones, and an expanded 2026 exploration program planned to grow the resource and enable a PEA.

Other projects owned by the Company include the Silverboss molybdenum-copper-gold-silver project adjacent to Glencore's closed Boss Mountain molybdenum mine and the adjacent Hen-Art-DL gold and silver project.

On November 7, 2024, the Company announced the closing of the sale of the Highland Valley Copper Project to Metal Energy Corp. (TSX:V MERG) ("Metal Energy"). The Company holds 2,347,220 common shares of Metal Energy.

The Company is committed to responsible mineral resource development. The Company's priority is to build and sustain mutually beneficial relationships with Indigenous Communities in the territories in which the Company explores.
