Dave Hicks, co-founder and Director of Logic Wireless, commented, “We have built Logic Wireless based on a very high-quality product offering, understanding customers needs and then matching with existing or new technologies. The Siyata Mobile solution is truly unique and we believe this will offer land mobile radio users and existing cellular users with a whole new workforce communications proposition. It is critical that companies like Siyata Mobile innovate to provide solutions to meet the needs of a modern workforce.”

Marc Seelenfreund, CEO and Chairman of Siyata Mobile, added, “We are pleased to partner with one of the leading distributors of high quality communications solutions in Australia and New Zealand. This is an important agreement for Siyata, as it proves testament to the global reach of the Push-to-Talk technology and our continued objective to be a global player in this emerging innovative market.”

According to a recent report by Inkwood Research, the global public safety and security market is projected to grow to $537.2-billion by 2024 at a compound annual growth rate of 10.91 per cent between 2016 and 2024. The report notes: “Citizens and enterprises face continuous threats from cybercriminals, natural disasters and terrorist attacks. This has increased the demand for public safety and security solutions across the world.”
