

ALT5 Sigma's Peter Tassiopoulos Explains How Crypto Works and Examines Trump's Impact on the Crypto Revolution

written by InvestorNews | January 6, 2025

January 6, 2025 – In a recent interview with Tracy Hughes of Investor.News, Peter Tassiopoulos, CEO and Director of ALT5 Sigma Corporation (NASDAQ: ALTS), provided a comprehensive overview of cryptocurrency fundamentals and offered guidance on investing safely in the digital currency market. Tassiopoulos described cryptocurrencies as digital assets that leverage blockchain technology—a robust, unalterable database—to ensure transaction security and transparency. He differentiated between various types of cryptocurrencies, including stable coins, which are typically pegged to stable assets like the U.S. dollar, offering a less volatile means of engaging with digital currencies. “Cryptocurrencies are built on the same blockchain and allow for transparency and security as far as currency goes,” he explained, highlighting the technological underpinnings that make cryptocurrencies a revolutionary financial tool.

Tassiopoulos addressed common security concerns associated with digital currencies, reassuring potential investors about the safety measures inherent to cryptocurrency designs. He noted that while traditional bank accounts are vulnerable to unauthorized access, cryptocurrencies offer a more secure alternative due to their complex encryption protocols. “It’s very difficult to steal a cryptocurrency,” he remarked, suggesting that despite media focus on crypto breaches, they are no more common than breaches in conventional financial systems. He also emphasized the importance of due diligence when investing in cryptocurrencies, advising investors to stick with well-known currencies like Bitcoin, Ethereum, and others that receive substantial attention and coverage. This strategic approach, he argued, is crucial, especially in an era marked by the recent election of President Trump, which has sparked increased interest in the crypto sector due to the administration’s favorable stance on blockchain technologies.
